

“To tackle challenges large and small, our world needs more strategic philanthropy. Women can lead this charge, harnessing their growing wealth and influence to create a more just, equitable and healthy society.”

Scholarships change lives. The financial assistance they provide often enables students to undertake further educational opportunities that may have otherwise been inaccessible .

Serenity Bouchard, Leading the Legacy Giving Society scholarship recipient, now has the financial support and resources to fulfill her aspiration of becoming a social worker.

Student emergency funding is vital to the success of CSU Pueblo’s hardworking students.

“While traveling for a cross country meet, our van was broken into and the entire team’s backpacks were stolen, all of which held laptops and important textbooks. In this stressful time, the Foundation generously, and promptly, funded the money to replace our essential items. We are so grateful for their support. Without them many of us would have endured deficits in the classroom without our resources.”

Leading the Legacy

Purpose

Colorado State University Pueblo's Leading the Legacy is a giving society founded by philanthropic women who aspire for inclusion and diversity to make a positive impact in Pueblo County through higher education. Everyone is welcome to become a member of Leading the Legacy.

Collaboration

Through the collaboration of Leading the Legacy founders, CSU Pueblo, CSU Pueblo Foundation and community partners, our aim is to bring our community together to collectively recognize that everyone has the capability of making an exponential impact on CSU Pueblo and its students.

Time, Talent & Treasure

Through this society, your gift will support CSU Pueblo students through $1,000 scholarships, mentorship, volunteerism and emergency funding. These gifts will help students succeed academically and personally.

Giving

A $500 contribution to the Leading the Legacy Giving Society can be made through a variety of options. Donors can choose a schedule that best fits their financial planning, whether that means making monthly payments, semi-annual contributions, or a single annual donation. If you would like to make a larger contribution to increase the impact for CSU Pueblo students, contact Dacia Shaw at dacia.shaw@csupueblo.edu or (719) 250-2470.
